REFLECTION from Fr. Lincoln: As we keep vigil for the coming of the Lord, we are called to always be prepared. That first generation in the early Church felt assured that the end times would surely be coming during their lifetime. However, here we are 2,000 years later and the end times still have not come. Each day, the Lord gives us wonderful opportunities to grow and learn on our journey of faith. The Lord gives us the opportunities to be prepared for that day when Jesus will come again, even though we do not know the day or the hour. Many see things that are happening in the world that portend the coming of Jesus. However, the main thing is not for us to try to predict when that day is going to come, but rather to devote ourselves to being prepared and serving God and our neighbor. Blessings to you in the month of remembrance, when we pray in a special way for the faithful departed, for our deceased loved ones and family members.
